The Foundation provides three types of direct service funding support:

Innovative Programs with Local Impact

Small grants are available for the expansion of direct service programs that meet a need of disadvantaged children in a local community in an innovative way. Funding can be sought to add a new program component, to serve additional children, or to make an existing program more efficient or effective.

National Replication/Adaptation/Expansion of Innovations

Larger and sometimes multi-year grants are available for innovative direct service programs that have the ability to bring their successful programs to additional communities. Funding can be sought for the process of growing a program that benefits disadvantaged children and families to multiple sites across the nation.

Innovative Programs with National Impact

Seed grants are available for brand new programs that propose to meet the needs of vulnerable children and their families in a new way and have the potential for improving the quality of life for these children in every community across the nation. Grant size in this category ranges widely.
