Summary: The Foundation's commitment is to improve people's health and wellbeing, especially those who confront barriers due to low-to moderate-socioeconomic status, race, ethnicity and gender. We define health broadly and include within our expanded view the link between physical health and the economic, social, environmental and psychological factors that affect individuals, families and communities. Special attention will be given to efforts that address the health disparities that exist between the rich and the poor, build bridges between the common concerns of disparate constituencies, and recognize the strategic importance of employing a variety of approaches (coalition building, research, litigation) to produce institutional change. Priority attention will be given to efforts that are national in scope and efforts that have the potential of having a multi-state or statewide impact and can be replicated.
