

Do you want to make a difference in the lives of students with disabilities? Take advantage of this opportunity to receive a fully funded Ph.D. in special education!

Researching Interventions in Special Education (RISE) Scholars Network

The RISE Scholars Network is a multi-institution doctoral training program at Texas A&M University, University of Nebraska–Lincoln and the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. Our purpose is to prepare leaders in special education to design, evaluate and disseminate interventions, and to teach and lead the next generation of special educators.

Benefits

Successful candidates may receive up to five years of guaranteed funding totaling more than $230,000.

Funding includes:

- Annual stipend
- Full tuition
- Health insurance
- Travel funding
- Dissertation support
- New computer and software

Experiences include:

- Designing special education interventions
- Teaching courses for pre-service teachers
- Collaborating with experts and building your Scholar Network across universities
- Interning with state departments of education

APPLY TO BE A RISE SCHOLAR IN FALL 2022!

Candidates must pursue a doctorate in special education with specialization in intervention research at one of the three participating universities beginning in the 2022-23 academic year.

Visit risescholarsnetwork.org for application details and deadlines.

TEXAS A&M
UNIVERSITY

UNIVERSITY of NEBRASKA
LINCOLN

THE UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE
KNOXVILLE

Office of Special Education Programs
U.S. Department of Education